I remember when I was 15 I always loved how floral's or flowers looked. The details and shadow on the floral showed a very elegance design and how nature is beautiful. My signature design was a curve but sort of like a eyebrow shape like a flourished swirl. For example http://images.all-free-download.com/images/graphiclarge/free\_abstract\_curves\_with\_blue\_background\_vector\_illustration\_147914.jpg. I would always draw these designs on my paper when I was bored during my high school years. The image of the flourished swirl was like second nature to me so on December 16, 2015 I sketched out a floral drawing that could be my logo that represents me best. I scanned the drawing, and opened up Illustrator creating a 450 x 450 pixels document. I dragged and dropped my sketched image onto my canvas and traced it with a pen tool. During the process of tracing surprisingly I didn't have to go back and make any changes I felt that it was right the way my logo/avatar looked. I started thinking of names afterwards coming up with Chromo, Chromata, and Chromatic. I choose Chromatic because I loved the name. Just decided to use Helvetica Neue Bold to create my logo that best represents who I truly am.
